

ABSTRACT

A novel method for cartilage and bone induction is introduced whereby an artificially perforated bone organic bone matrix augmented by live human undifferentiated cells suspended in a gel is used as a surgical implant.